

Climate change refers to long-term shifts in temperatures and weather patterns.

These shifts may be natural, but since the 1800s, human activities have been the main driver.

The burning of fossil fuels like coal and oil has increased greenhouse gas levels, raising global temperatures.

Effects include rising sea levels, extreme weather, and biodiversity loss.

Governments and organizations are working on climate action policies and renewable energy adoption.